Extremely little power absolutely corrupts Student Government official

Joe Marshall
STAFF WRITER

CAMPUS—Citing a recent attempt to establish his own scholarship-fueled harem and sex cabal, President William Powers Jr. issued a statement yesterday that formally called for the immediate dismissal of Matt Hatfield, a natural sciences representative in student government, from the SG assembly.

After a series of power plays that resulted in Hatfield becoming marginally more powerful than he was prior to joining student government, Powers felt his antics had gone far enough.

“We all know student government is a stupid organization designed for self-congratulatory douche bags, but it seems Matt Hatfield is on a different level,” said Powers in the statement. “He really bought into that shit.”

“We all know student government is a stupid organization designed for self-congratulatory douche bags, but it seems Matt Hatfield is on a different level,” said Powers in the statement. “He really bought into that shit.”

Since taking office, Hatfield has been charged with several counts of extortion and racketeering, including a citation for attempting to browbeat protection money out of several student organizations canvassing in the West Mall.

“He came up to me and started going on about how he wanted a ‘taste’ of ‘some of that sweet Coptic Students of Texas action’” said Michael Anders, one of the students who was approached by Hatfield. “I gave him a couple of fliers and a piece of gum and he left.”

“We all know student government is a stupid organization designed for self-congratulatory douche bags, but it seems Matt Hatfield is on a different level,” said Powers in the statement.

According to Anders, Hatfield then tried to shake down the Hyde Park Cantonese student congregation. “They just made fun of his track suit until he moved on,” Anders added.

William Thorneing, the SG faculty liaison, was disappointed but not surprised about Hatfield’s dismissal.

“I really don’t understand where he got off track,” said Thorneing, who could barely believe that such a minor amount of power could corrupt anyone. “He was initially appointed as part of a task force designed to study the effectiveness of certain strategically placed napkin holders in J2. By the end of that very same day, he’d already attempted to dissolve the Texas legislature and annex southern Croatia. What’s weird is that the task force was purely advisory. And he wasn’t even leading it; the committee thought he lacked the necessary experience.”

Hatfield’s continuing status as a student at the University of Texas is also being called into question, as recent developments have brought to light an e-mail he sent to a professor, promising him an evening with two of his “willingest” constituents and a lucrative Chick-Fil-A gift card in exchange for what Hatfield described in the e-mail as “A little bit of that GPA sugar…but just so we’re clear, I want an A in your class.”

Hatfield himself could not be reached for comment, as he was too busy figuring out a way to collect on Bevo, whose lack of thumbs have stymied Hatfield’s previous attempts to break into the loan-shark business.

Tuition increase justified by offering classes in 3D

Local man patiently waits for car air conditioner to cool French fries

AUSTIN—The University of Texas Board of Regents announced on Thursday that they would be raising tuition by 10 percent to account for classes now being offered in 3D.

“We plan on really revolutionizing the way students learn in our classrooms,” said Gene Powell, chairman of the board of regents. “Before each lecture, the professor will distribute special glasses that will assist students in seeing the class in three dimensions.”

According to the statement put forth by the regents, professors will be required to integrate special props into their lecture in order to further enhance the 3D experience. These props include Yo-Yo’s, confetti and frisbees that will fly into the seating area on points of emphasis during lectures.

KANSAS CITY, MO—After a preliminary taste test proved dangerous, local man Reed Meiers patiently waited as the car air conditioner cooled his french fries to an appropriate temperature.

“I thought they were ready, but you just can’t rush these things,” said Meiers as he held a steaming handful of fries up to his air conditioner. “About 57 degrees should do the trick.” Meiers then proceeded to add ketchup to his burger, eying the French fries every few minutes, while enjoying the greasy aroma that filled his Toyota Camry. He then had several sips of Dr. Pepper, noting its refreshing taste and the cooling relief it provided to the oral injuries sustained in first attempts to eat his salty snack. As he continued eating, Meiers drove to meet up with his girlfriend of six years to see if she had reconsidered his marriage proposal.

HOUSTON—After the unforeseen and tragic death of their 22-year-old son Alex, Patrick and Sarah Brinkley said that the wrong son died and his older brother, 24 year-old Aaron, should have been the one to die first. “The death of any child is too much for any parent to bear, but if one of my sons had to go, it probably should have been the other one,” Sarah said as she bitterly sobbed into a handkerchief. “My little Alexander was such a sweet boy and wanted to be a doctor. We never really had hopes for Aaron.”
Construction workers running out of places to throw away all the time capsules they find

Harry Truong
STAFF WRITER
AUSTIN—A recent press release issued by the university blamed the discovery of a multitude of time capsules buried throughout the ground as the main culprit for the massive delays on the completion of various construction projects on campus.

“For every one we dump, we find twenty more to deal with,” said Brady Franks, Construction Supervisor of the Theatre and Arts building project. “Our dumpsters are overflowing with Bon Jovi memorabilia. We may be forced to burn them on site or make a lot of cool pop art.”

The numerous time capsules in question are believed to have been buried by Austin-area fourth graders, unimagination mothers and American history professors. Jessica Evans, an outraged fourth grade teacher at Hillside Elementary School, is actively protesting the disposal of the time capsules.

“Please, come back to collect your beanie babies, we simply have no more room to dispose of them ourselves.”

Franks, however, argues that the capsules have no value. “These aren’t priceless heirlooms we’re dealing with here,” he said as he angrily tossed another capsule into the quickly growing pile.

“Why would you put a Beatles album in there? The Beatles are timeless. Do you think you’re going to have a chuckle about how crazy your music taste was with The White Album? Some of these capsules have no thought put into them.”

Construction workers have been asked to seek alternative dumping sites for the time capsules until the city approves Frank’s public incineration permit request. As of press time, the university is investigating the possibility of turning the West Campus area into a landfill.

Additionally, the university is hopeful that the people who buried the particularly poorly thought out time capsules would come back campus to pick them up.

“Many of the time capsules were buried around 1999 to celebrate the millennium, and sadly, the late 90s yielded more of less nothing worth remembering,” the university stated in its press release. “Please, come back to collect your beanie babies, we simply have no more room to dispose of them ourselves.”

Baseball watched at 80’s party

HOUSTON—Reports are surfacing that a sport known by historians as “baseball” was watched for nostalgia’s sake at a 1980’s themed party held at Mark Stills apartment last Saturday. The sport, in which grown men grab their crotch and swing large planks of wood while thousands of observers yawn, faded from popularity decades ago, but was quite an attraction at the party. “You know, I remember my Dad talking about baseball a long time ago, and there was something cathartic about seeing it on TV for myself,” said Stills. “I thought it would be great at the party.” Many people at the apartment spent upwards of 30 minutes gathered around the television broadcasting the sport while trying to make sense of it. “Were they throwing it like that on purpose?” asked a confused Cindy Keeler, who was dressed as a fat Oprah. “Wouldn’t it have been nicer to just hand the other person the ball?” The party was such a success that Stills is planning on holding another themed get-together where he will unveil another little-known sport he refers to as “hockey.”

Birds doing it everywhere

DALLAS, TX—Mini Mall shopper Julia Meloni, 37, reported to authorities on Wednesday that she was appalled to find birds doing it on telephone wires, ledges and generally everywhere around town. “I thought they were all just kind of hanging out,” Meloni stated quickly while peering towards the sky. “But when I looked closer I’m pretty sure they were having you-know-what!” Meloni quickly covered her 4-year-old daughter’s eyes and ran into the CVS to avoid the scene. “I wish they would have the self-respect to do that in private, and don’t even get me started on their pooping,” Meloni said as she walked back to her car with her daughter under their newly purchased umbrella.

Sex starved moon women likely a myth, lonely NASA officials report

HOUSTON—In a recent press release, a team of lonely, desperate NASA scientists reported that sex-starved moon women were unlikely to actually exist. This news is considered a tremendous loss for the group of middle-aged men, who previously theorized that the moon was inhabited by thousands of gorgeous, horny alien women that didn’t mind pasty skin or FOX’s Fringe. “We were really counting on this”, remarked researcher Arnie Goldwasser, as he shined his cracked glasses. “But it’s just a bunch of minerals and no chicks.” Now that NASA has completed their extensive survey of the Moon’s surface, they plan to conduct field research on Venus, where they believe a fleet of Jessica Alba clones might live.
Petty argument devolves into United States Senate hearing

Jermaine Affonso
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

WASHINGTON DC—A minor argument about whose turn it was to do the dishes devolved into a full scale legislative hearing Wednesday, with both Republicans and Democrats taking sides on the divisive issue.

The controversy between roommates Ned Baker and Paul Swenson began as a minor passive aggressive feud that resulted in a growing pile of dishes in the sink of their Far West apartment before quickly escalating to an argument and then a senate hearing by 8 p.m.

“It really seemed like the run-of-the-mill roommate conflict that happens from time to time,” said Swenson, a marketing major at the University of Texas. “I assumed we’d be cool by the end of the night, but before I knew it, I was being subpoenaed for the full details of my chore calendar.”

The disagreement has prompted the democrats to introduce bill HR 27 Co-tenant Liability and Protection Act, which would provide increased regulation and an additional level of bureaucracy for roommates.

“You really hope that you can solve your roommate problems without getting the U.S. Senate involved,” said Baker, a civil engineering major, as he described the lengthy process of a legislative hearing. “I really hope I can make it back in time for the test in my 9 a.m. class tomorrow.”

News of the conflict has sent shock waves through Congress, whose members were quick to prepare the necessary documents to give the common household spat the time it deserved in front of legislators.

“In this trying time for our nation, it is important to re-assess our moral compass and take a good look at our values,” said Senate minority leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY). “By firmly agreeing that it is Ned’s turn to do the dishes. We can establish a much needed precedent to cook his famous vegetable stir fry.”

“If that so-called committee had done even the slightest amount of research into the question at hand, they would have discovered that Paul had sorted out the recycling the last four times,” said policy committee chairman Sen. Chuck Shumer (D-NY). “It’s important that our government provide increased protection for roommates that are committed to the environment.”

The extensive hearing featured testimony from the roommates’ closest friends, their landlord and Swenson’s dog, Ginger, who lives with the duo and managed to remain neutral during the proceeding.

Despite the controversy, both sides of the debate are hoping that a formal legislative session will finally be able to overturn 1995’s “sock on the door-knob” ruling.

Christian rock band opens with the one about Jesus

MUNCIE, IN—Christian rock group The All Salvation opened their Thursday evening set at the Horizon Convention Center with a stirring rendition of their latest single “Pierced (By Jesus),” focusing on the life and love of Jesus Christ. “We were unsure if it was a good choice to open with something that was so new and experimental,” said the band’s lead singer, Kip Clarkson, as he blew out the 60 candles that were used to light the stage. “But the second we said we were opening with a song about Jesus, the crowd went wild. The energy was crazy!” The All Salvation used their concert to promote their upcoming album, which they say covers such themes as sanctity, forgiveness and Jesus.

Jumbotron operator keeps zooming in on particularly attractive children

DALLAS—The usual fun pastime of staring at the Jumbotron during sporting events took a somewhat uncomfortable turn when Dallas Mavericks Jumbotron operator Mark Sandfield continued to zoom in on particularly attractive children during the Mavericks recent contest against the Denver Nuggets. “It’s usually fun to watch the funny things they show on the Jumbotron during the game,” said Rick Smicker, a longtime Mavericks season ticket holder. “But during this game all they showed were children for uncomfortable lengths of time with suggestive music playing in the background.”

During this game all they showed were children for uncomfortable lengths of time with suggestive music playing in the background. While most of the arena remained silent during the display, various men seated individually around the American Airlines Center could be heard cheering loudly each time a child was put on camera. “Well…I just love kids,” said Chris Reinke, one of the older fans sitting alone. “That’s why I’m the den leader of Boy Scout troop 664.”

Terrorist threat interpreted as ‘mostly metaphorical’

WASHINGTON—After several hours of analysis by Department of Homeland Security officials, a terrorist threat received Monday was determined to be predominantly metaphorical in content. “This really was your run-of-the-mill terrorist threat: vague references to death, power-hungry motifs, and all-around poor syntax,” chief analyst Bill Hines told reporters. “At the end of the day, the letter was a bit too hyperbolic to be considered literally.” Hines added that the anonymous terrorist failed to cite quotations from both Saddam Hussein and Chaucer. Once identified, the suspect may face serious plagiarism charges.

Arcade Fire wins Best Picture

LOS ANGELES—Attendees of Sunday’s 83rd annual Academy Awards were stunned when Canadian indie-rock band The Arcade Fire took home the Oscar for Best Picture, beating out such favorites as The King’s Speech and The Social Network. “What the fuck is an Arcade Fire?” David Fincher, director of The Social Network. “That shit is ridiculous. I’m leaving.” The Arcade Fire’s victory marks only the second time a non-film has taken home the Oscar for best picture, the first instance occurring in 1998 when the ice-cream flavor Shakespeare in Love won the award.
Matt Bonner dominates Spelling Bee portion of All-Star Weekend

LOS ANGELES—The NBA’s All-Star weekend is known for high-scoring games and extravagant dunk contests, but this year’s spotlight was stolen by Matt Bonner’s dominant performance in the 2011 All-Star spelling bee. “He was unstoppable. Whether it was a silent ‘k’ or a word with homonyms, he had an answer for it all,” said Tayshaun Prince, the bee’s runner-up. Notable words that Bonner correctly spelled included “staunch,” “serendipitous” and “dachshund,” though Bonner said the most difficult word for him was in the semi-final round when spelling bee proctor Dennis Rodman asked him to spell “Massachusetts.” Bonner was modest about his victory. “I’m very proud of this achievement, but I couldn’t have done it alone. I’d like to thank my whole team, especially Tony Parker, who refused to pass me the ball in games until I could correctly spell all words on the Scripps National Spelling Bee word list.”

This was Bonner’s first spelling bee victory since the first grade, and the third overall in his illustrious career as a speller and part-time recreational basketball player.

Bloodied Blake Griffin to Clippers crowd: “Are you not entertained?”

LOS ANGELES, CA—A bloodied Blake Griffin startled the home crowd at the Staples Center during the Clippers latest contest against the Golden State Warriors after he descended from a rim shattering dunk, and while clearly injured, taunted the fans in attendance by holding his arms up and shouting “Are you not entertained?” After losing his rookie season to injury, Griffin, the former no. 1 pick in the draft, vowed to electrify crowds and someday achieve his freedom from the lowly Clippers. “I had a moment of clarity. After I saw Russell Crowe in Gladiator, I thought, if I can win the crowd, surely some other team will buy me out of this hell hole. I’ve been clawing and dunking my way to a better place ever since. That’s why I screamed that quote. I needed a release.” When asked if he was exaggerating the conditions, Griffin responded, “It’s as bad as the movie. We only have one hand-me-down basketball from the Lakers and our uniforms are sewed together from scraps…but I will have my vengeance, in this life or the next.”
There are few working comics today that are as recognizable and prolific as Lewis Black. Named by Comedy Central as one of the top 100 stand-up comedians of all-time, Black has been making audiences laugh around the country for roughly 20 years. His signature angry, ranting style combined with his bi-partisan disappointment in the current state of affairs has made Black's re-occurring "Back and Black" segment on the Daily Show must see television for political junkies and comedy lovers alike. The Travesty sat down with Black for a few minutes to learn more about his life as a comedian and the inspiration behind his material.

TT: You're known for your ranting style, did you start out like that right away, or did you ease into that?
LB: When I first started out, I started really early on, in the beginning I was talking about my sex life, because it was really funny. I mean it really was. And then after that, it kind of evolved over time. And then when I really became interested in it, when I focused on it, I realized people laugh when I get angry. It only took me a few years of doing it to realize that. It took me from like 20 to 40 to go "Oh really? Really, that's why people laugh? You fucking idiot!" It really is the thing that eludes most comics. The thing that's always interesting about a comic, especially young comics, is you'll be sitting with them, they're extremely funny, they're on stage and you're like "who the fuck is on stage?" Get this guy [garbled] and this TT: So I'm not sure if you read this, but there's this Web site called eHow.com, and it delivers step-by-step instructions on how to deliver smart comedy, like Lewis Black. Step 4 was to shake your fingers and appear angry.

LB: Oh yeah, "appear angry," fuck him! No, some of it is real anger and some of it isn't, but that's funny. Fuckin' where do these things come from?
TT: So what's your comedic process like?
LB: I wake up, and I turn on CNN or one of the other ones and I watch, and most of them are worthless, they're too busy commenting on the news to actually tell you anything. So I watch that for a few minutes, then I go to a newspaper or magazine and I look around or somebody sends me an email and I start thinking about it. The last big thing I was upset about is before I went on my vacation, they announced that Facebook was worth $50 billion. I read that, and I went ape shit because it can't be worth $50 billion in any world. If Facebook is worth $50 billion, my entire body is worth a trillion dollars because it's actually real, and you can take parts of it and sell it. And you can't tell me that it's worth $50 billion dollars, you just can't. We can't go through a bubble thing again. You know, I could see 10 billion. I could see 5 billion, but 50 billion, you're insane. And this is all predicated on Goldman Sachs' money, the people who fisted us during the first go-around. So now you're going to believe this? So I started thinking about it and yelling and screaming, and then I found out a few more things about it, and it became 5 minutes of my act.
TT: So as far as recent events, what's been a better source of material for you: the George Bush administration or Sarah Palin and the Tea Party?
LB: I don't recognize Sarah Palin as real. I believe she is a group hallucination and she doesn't exist. I can't give her credit on any level for anything. I have to ignore her. As much funny as I could get from her, it's not worth it and it's wrong. Because I can't have lived my whole life, and I've seen people. Dan Quayle was seriously funny. He was 45 minutes of funny. She's probably good for 3 hours, but she's got nothing to do with the reality of leadership. And if she does, I have to say good-bye and move somewhere else, because I don't have time for that. I mean really, she spends most of her time on a Web site telling me what she thinks. Well then, maybe she's just a part of Facebook. You know who she is? She's the candidate from Farmville. TT: One of my favorite jokes you do is one where you talk about the end of the world and say how it's symbolized by an actual location in Houston where there are two Starbucks located across the street from each other. Have you seen any other commercially fueled signs of our impending doom since then?
LB: Well the fact that Microsoft and Apple think that one is better than the other, it's like the Republicans and the Democrats. I had a computer that eventually kind of faded out and due to a number of circumstances I went from Microsoft to Apple. So I get the Apple computer because it's supposed to be "intuitive" and it works like you do so I start to use that and I haven't really gotten the other computer off my desk and I realize that I have to keep the other computer on my desk to remember what a piece of shit it was so that I can keep this Mac that's a piece of shit. And the only reason that I'm keeping this piece of shit is that it works. But basically they're two sides of the same piece of shit. You ask a Microsoft computer a question and it gives you a little help thing, you go there and the help thing might as well have a finger raised in the air going "Fuck you!" And the Apple help thing has little clouds and fairy dust, but it's no better.
How did you first discover Olivia was sexy? How old was she?

I began to suspect Olivia was sexy at about 14 months. After what appeared to be a normal infancy, we began to recognize strikingly abnormal looks. Olivia was very nice to look at. She became increasingly attractive and lost normal baby unsightliness very rapidly.

How was she different from your other, non-sexy child?

Compared to our other child, Olivia was a goddess. Our other child developed in a very normal manner. She quickly grew a disfiguring mole, a unibrow, and chubby cheeks. Olivia, on the other hand, did not appear like she came from our genes, but more like angels constructed her and then sent her down from heaven.

Tell us about areas where Olivia has made gains in terms of looking normal.

Olivia has made great progress. She regularly wipes her face with bacon grease, which is creating a few decent pimples. She also cut her hair to resemble her grandmother's, but it seems to have only accentuated her amazing features.

Tell us about anything that continues to concern you about Olivia.

We still have a ways to go before Olivia's sensual face and body appear the same as a typical five year old or even 18 year old. We are continuing to work on creating awkwardness and reducing her self-confidence.

What are your expectations for Olivia?

I can’t say that I expect Olivia to be “normal” in the near future. In fact, we don’t know for certain that she ever will be—she is just too sexy.

Nickelodeon

Where Are They Now?

Stick Stickly
Nick in the Afternoon

Following his work at Nickelodeon, Stickly graduated with his medical degree in internal medicine in 2004 and helped doctors everywhere peer into the backs of people’s throats.

Alex Mack
The Secret World of Alex Mack

Hmm… This one slipped through the cracks somehow.

Kel Mitchell
Kenan & Kel, All That

Following the series finale of Kenan and Kel, Mitchell approached Sunkist with a freelance marketing strategy centering on him as the celebrity spokesperson. He eventually changed his name to “Mitt Romney” and is pursuing a career in politics.

Temple Guards
Legends of the Hidden Temple

In 2005, two class action lawsuits were filed against the Temple Guards. One was by the various children that they terrorized during their time on television. The other by the Coahuiltecan Alliance for being extremely racist.

The Pieces of the AggroCrag
Guts!

Legend has it if you collect all of the pieces of the AggroCrag, Mike O’Malley appears and attempts to sell you Time Warner Cable’s Digital Deluxe Package.

Sam
Clarrisa Explains It All

In 2000, Sam was charged with trespassing and misconduct after attempting to climb through the dorm room window of a girl he met at orientation.

Mark Summers
Double Dare & What Would You Do?

Today, Summers is probably still a bad ass. The Travesty has absolutely no information confirming or denying that he lives in a mansion on an island he owns and regularly relaxes on the beach with super models while trained dolphin butlers serve him Mai Tai’s.

The University recently announced that it will be launching a television network in collaboration with ESPN this fall. Some have questioned whether the network will have enough content to fill 24 hours each week, but the Travesty recently uncovered the fall lineup for UT TV, and it’s impressive to say the least.

Keeing Up With The McCoy’s

It’s been over a year since Colt McCoy last suited up for the Longhorns, and it seems that his life has been a rollercoaster since then. After the heart-wrenching goodbye he shared with roommate and lover Jordan Shipley at the conclusion of Season 1, “Keeping Up With The McCoy’s” returns with Colt and his new wife Rachel welcoming twins into the family. Watch all the touchdowns, fumbles and kisses the McCoy’s share in their zany post-Austin life!

Man vs. J2

Ryan Chapman has an appetite for instant-mashed potatoes and stale salad bars that would even make the hungriest football lineman blush. The Freshman 15 is just speed bump on Chapman’s quest to eat every morsel of food he can in one sitting at J2. As we learned on Indian food night, it won’t always be pretty, but with a little can-do attitude and a remarkable addiction to MSG, Chapman has the stomach to achieve the American dream. Thursdays at seven.

Dirty Jobs: Liberal Arts Career Services Edition

Unpaid internships at Ponzi schemes and openings as junior-assistant managers at Mattress Firm are only a few of the employment opportunities explored on Liberal Arts Dirty Jobs. Watch students back into poor career decisions with no possibility of advancement. Laugh along with our host, Deborah Smith, as she types away in an office with four high school drop outs while staring longingly at the degree she went $40,000 into debt to attain!

An RTF Undergraduate Original Sci-fi Movie: Bevo vs. Octopus

The evil Dr. Bob Stoops has devised another evil plot for his Oklahoma Sooners to win the Big 12 conference, and only Bevo can stop him!

Described by his T.A. as, “A triumph in ideas that don’t make any sense,” RTF sophomore Jordy Jansen’s film, Bevo vs. Octopus breaks ground on the previously untouched bovine fighting octopus narrative.
Welcome to

THE SAC

(Student Activity Center)

Hey, this is the brand spankin’ new SAC. Not only is it like the Union if the Union came from the future, but it’s called fucking SAC. So you can go up to girls and be like, “Wanna go study in the SAC, girl?” and then do a sexy eyebrow thing and BAM! It’s “Doin’ It” time.

Look at those sleek ass fountains. That’s some Feng-shui right there.

Look at this classroom or conference room or whatever. Can’t you just imagine a fucking space council meeting in there? Star Wars shit, man.

Whoa a fireplace? It’s like your goddamn living room, homie. EXCEPT BETTER.

These amorphous shapes? Couches. That’s right. Told you we’re in the future. That’s some modern-ass shit.

Wait, no Wendy’s? What’s this bullshit? OH WAIT there’s a second damn Chick-Fil-A and a Taco Cabana. A Taco Cabana Rapido.

These lamps. These lamps look like fuckin’ Pokemons.

Call me crazy, but I enjoy rubbing frog’s blood all over my chest and screaming at the refrigerator

I’m sure most of y’all are tired of hearing me go on about my pastime, but trust me, the next time you find yourself with a cooler full of frogs, consider extracting their blood and rubbing it all over your chest and then you tell me if you don’t feel the urge to scream at some sort of cooling apparatus.

Of course, if you’re feeling too shy to baste yourself in frog entrails and shout at your fridge, then you can start off smaller and just yell at your toaster with peanut butter on your ankles. I guess if you’re feeling even friskier you can put some jelly on your knees. Okay, I suppose that does sound a little ridiculous. Just stick to the frog’s blood and refrigerator and I reckon you’ll be golden. And don’t you worry because you can certainly use the frog’s skin to make shadow puppets for children’s birthday parties.

You’ll be the talk of the town! Remember that kid in elementary school who could shove his entire hamburger into his mouth in one bite? After the initial wow factor wore off, the kid would just have this giant bulge of meat and starch working around in his mouth, his face contorting and mashing in an attempt to work through what was ultimately a cheap ploy for attention. Then finally, after his face has turned red and tears began to well in his eyes, he would realize: “Huh, I guess I bit off more than I could chew.”

Over the past few months, I realized that in terms of my collegiate career, I am that kid. And so I must bid the Travesty adieu, to continue on my journey to somehow graduate before I’m older than the average NBA player (26.77 yrs), or broker than the average homeless person ($0.36 a month). It’s been a wild ride and I’m really pleased with the results.

While at the Travesty, we began a comedy sketch production arm that has been seen across the nation (at least according to YouTube), and a podcast that has been heard by...someone (right?). I hope that these continue on and gain some momentum (so get online and check them out at www.texastravesty.com [!]), because I know the staff works hard to put them out.

Let me take this time to thank my fellow staffers, the editors, and our Editor-in-Chief, Alyssa, for helping make this a hell of a ride. Each and every one of them loves to laugh, and more importantly, loves to make everyone else laugh. Never has that been more apparent than at the TSM Banquet every April. Truly a jolly band of merry men and women. I can’t wait to see what they have in store.

What kind of a name is John Boner?

Nancy Pelosi
HOUSE MINORITY LEADER

Ugh. I can’t believe that stupid John Boehner guy has my job now. I mean seriously, just look at him. How can anyone be that dumb looking and pass legislation? Where the hell did he even come from? And what kind of a name is John Boner? Boner! His last name is Boner for Chrissakes!

I bet he can’t even get boners. I bet he’s a virgin loser who’s too busy crying about Democrats to ever get any.

Sorry if I’m sounding like a bitch, Hillary, but it’s been a really rough week for me. And every time I have to see that idiot’s face I get so angry! I really need to vent tonight. I just spent like an hour on the phone with my mom, and she didn’t help at all and I don’t know if I’m just emotional because it was just my birthday or whatever but I don’t know… I just hate that John Buttface Boner! Ugh!

Like, he pretends to be all smug and cool because he has my old job but everyone knows it’s just because he’s friends with Glenn Beck. I was good at my job! Now he gets to the hold the gavel? This is a nightmare, Hillary. A fucking nightmare. I’m pretty and like, super nice. Why does everyone hate me now?!

He acts like a big crybaby in the press but if everyone knew what a douche he is off camera, they would be on my side. He told me yesterday that he farted in my chair! That guy is third in line to the presidency and he’s a farter, Hillary. A farting boner.

Somebody wrote “Minority Leader” in pink lipstick on my locker today. I bet it was that bitch Michele Bachmann! I could fucking sue her, probably.

I tried to tell Barack about it and he acted like it wasn’t even a big deal. He was all like, “What do you want me to do about it, Nancy?” He acted like it was my fault! Can you believe that? It’s like, I know he has a lot of stuff on his plate right now, but I honestly feel like he doesn’t even respect me anymore. I’ve been working super hard on our relationship and he hasn’t even been answering his Blackberry.

Do you think he likes someone else?

I don’t know what I’m going to do. I just need to go out tonight. Are you busy? You can spend the night at my place. I already told my stepmom.

Point: You can’t say that Husserl is better than Johann Gottlieb Fichte. That’s like saying that Jean-Baptiste Lully is better than Jean Sibelius.

Tosh Libbie
PHILOSOPHY HOBBiest

Are you seriously going to comparatively analyze Edmund Husserl and Johann Gottlieb Fichte? You might as well go ahead and compare Jean-Baptiste Lully and Jean Sibelius. Ha! As if anyone would ever do that. Seriously though, the idealism of Fichte lends to complete methodological distinctness from the phenomenology of Edmund Husserl. Husserl helped to pave the way for the existential philosophies of Jean-Paul Sartre and Martin Heidegger that stood in stark contradiction to the radical idealism of Fichte. How can you sleep with yourself at night, calling yourself an Academian while not recognizing this? Sure, they both dealt with Ontology, I’ll give you that—but the way they approached it was so radically different that you can’t honestly say one is better than the other without immediately throwing up trace amounts of your supper in disgust. You’d better get right with the gods of philosophy, because you certainly are not right with me.

Counterpoint: Yo, have you bought the book yet?

Zachary Johnson
SOPHOMORE

Hey bro, sick knowledge you’re throwing at me and all, but have you bought the book yet? I’m assuming you have, because you seem to know what you’re talking about. Do you think I could get a photocopy of half of what we need to read? This shit’s kinda boring. I’m pretty sure I can B.S. my way through the exam with only half of the material, though. I heard this class is total cake. I’ll share notes with you when I’m done. Thanks, bro.
