

October 2018

TEXAS

TRAVESTY

theVenue on Guadalupe
URBAN STUDENT APARTMENTS

NOW LEASING FOR FALL 2019

VenueOnGuadalupe.com · 512.473.3706

GREYSTAR

VillasOnGuadalupe.com · 512.220.0200

VILLAS on GUADALUPE
STUDENT HOUSING

JK Rowling reveals that Harry Potter was actually a black lesbian

Local kindergarten teacher claims job is "chill af"

Area man's DNA ancestry test reveals he spit in a tube, that's so gross

Angry citizen refuses to boil water, claims it will just evaporate

- The worst part about buying weed is having to watch boys play video games for 15 minutes
- He's an architecture major, so you know he's hung
- A sexy Beto costume is just a Beto costume

- Betty White was on TVLand last night
- I'm trying to cut down on the amount of legumes I eat
- I've been registered to vote since 1931
- Joseph Stalin can totally seize my means of production
- I bumped into my ex-savior at church the other day
- I thought Nirvana was a t-shirt brand
- I keep forgetting to find out what Crimea is
- Theoretically, I love podcasts
- Am I supposed to boil the Brita too?
- Trader Joe is better at trade deals than Trump

- So does the five-second rule apply when I drop that thun-thun-thun?
- Disney World is all fun and games until you realize everyone is wearing Mickey Mouse's scalped head
- She thinks women's suffrage means women literally suffering
- My Uber driver is more helpful and less expensive than my therapist
- I get Jerry Seinfeld and Nicolas Cage confused a lot
- My dad gives more money to Beto than he does to me
- The only part of the dog that goes to heaven are its nipples.

Celebrity DNA Test Results

KEVIN HART

100% Not tall enough to ride that roller coaster 25% Shaq's forearm

NICHOLAS CAGE

40% Ground Beef
30% cage
20% nickel

MR. BEAN

25% bean
75% beans

FAT ELVIS

98% elvis
2% milk

Editor-in-Chief Virginia Beshears
Managing Editor Arvind Ashok
Design Director Laura Doan
Associate Editors Max Lopez
Aakash Saraiya
Ali Sackley

Distribution Director Andrea Fernandez
Social Media Director Sharminn Somani
Head Videographer

Writing Staff Terry Huang
Ben Kelder
Andrew Badger

Design Staff Audrey Williams

Video Staff Nadia Sadri

Administrative Assistants
Kevin Barajas
Kayleigh Berger
Tommy Escobar
Jack Kelly
Jack Rosenblatt
Lulu Stracher
Will Tabor
Grace Whitmarsh

Contact

Email: texastravesty@gmail.com
Web: www.texastravesty.com
Mail: Texas Travesty • UT Austin
PO Box D • Austin, TX 78713

Shout Outz To...

Billy Eichner, dog nipples, Sonja's spider costume, garlic knots, peanuts, David Blaine

Editors Emeritus

Kevin Butler	Matt Ingebreton
1997	2009-2010
Brad Butler	Alyssa Peters
1997-2000	2010-2011
Ben Stroud	David McQuary
2000-2001	2011-2012
Trevor Rosen	Katherine Swope
2001-2003	2012-2013
Todd Nienkerk	Nick Mehendale
2003-2005	2013-2014
Kristin Hillary	Chris Gilman
2005-2006	2014-2015
David Strauss	Josh Brenner
2006-2007	2015-2016
Veronica Hansen	Max Friedman
2007-2008	2016
Ross Luippold	Grace Gilker
2008-2009	2017
	Cole Gerhoffer
	2017
	David Williams
	2018

Texas Student Media

Director	Gerald Johnson
Operations Manager	Frank Serpa
Advertising Manager	Emily Cohen
Editions Manager	Stephen Salisbury
Senior Designer	Amanda O'Brien

PLACE AN AD TODAY!

512-471-1865

advertise@texasstudentmedia.com

Area dog not sure what a Halloween costume is but is stoked regardless

A U S T I N — Local chihuahua Skittles was blissfully unaware of the years of tradition surrounding the strange garments draped over her by her owner this Halloweekend, but was thrilled to participate nonetheless. "Arf, urrrr bark," Skittles said in response to our reporter's positive encouragement and praise on the quality of her burrito costume. Although the costume restricted her flexibility, her tail's range of motion, her breathing, and her general ability to walk and run, this proved to be a non-issue for the tenacious Skittles. Clearly, she was just simply excited to be involved. Reports confirmed that Skittles' costume was well-received by partygoers, who called the costume "adorable," "scrumptious," and "precious."

Area man deletes social media, still unhappy

PLANO, TX — Area man Arvind Ashoke deleted all his social media this morning, only to find that he still experiences the same feelings of hopelessness, isolation, insecurity, and fear of missing out that he experienced before. "I saw this guy named Ed brag about his new job on LinkedIn," explained Ashoke, "before seeing some Instagram post showing him at happy hour. And when I saw Ed with that appletini — surrounded by his smiling coworkers, excelling at the career I was too stupid to pursue — something in me just burst. I called it quits right there." Ashoke subsequently tweeted a long thread to his 27 followers about leaving the platform for his own good. "Then I realized that the unreasonable expectations I have for life, the incessant desire to please everyone around me, my resentment for my peers, and the anxiety I feel about doing daily life all didn't go away when I stopped seeing Joe's political bullshit or Ed's new girlfriend on Instagram." At press time, Arvind was seen clicking the "reactive my account" button on his Twitter account, so his misery might once again be lessened by surrounding himself with other angry, miserable people.

LET'S MAKE AUSTIN BETTER TOGETHER.

austin 3•1•1

GET IT FREE ON Google Play

FREE DOWNLOAD
App Store

austin311.org

Fetuses have the capability to take a Myers-Briggs Test in the womb, pro-lifers say

AUSTIN — Pro-lifers are thrilled to announce that the knocked-up women who choose not to follow the 100% effective path of abstinence can now conduct tests to determine if the fetus they're carrying is more of a judger or a perceiver. "Assigning human qualities to something that is potentially a human might make the mother feel guilty enough to make the right decision," said Steve Todd, a worker at a pro-life pregnancy center who was wearing a "Pro-Life, Pro-Gun" shirt — oblivious to the irony. "It's basically the same thing that companies do to measure compatibility of their potential employees. Except parenting is a never-ending job that you can't get fired from, so it's kind of nothing like that at all." When asked if the pregnancy center followed up with the women to track the children's development, Todd said, "We obviously never want to infringe on a mother's life like that. I mean, how the kid actually turns out is really kind of irrelevant." At press time, Todd was seen showing pregnant women the Myers-Briggs personality types of celebrities, crying, "Don't you want your ENFJ fetus to have the chance to grow up to be like Sarah Palin? She's a hero for you guys, right?"

Toddler unable to make it all the way out to the end of the diving board without cracking his skull

ST. PETERSBURG, FL — Three-year-old Tommy O'Donnell was having the time of his life at the North Shore Aquatics Center on Saturday with his babysitter, 18-year-old Becky Friedman, until his parents showed up around three in the afternoon. After a full morning of harsh wilderness training, Tara and Trent O'Donnell, Ironman triathlete and extreme sports instructor respectively, showed up at the pool to see how their little stud was coming along. The O'Donnells walked a confused Tommy over to the high dive, hoping to "teach him a lesson about survival in this tough world."

On his dismount, the toddler tripped over the buckle on his floaties, bashed his head on the concrete platform, and plummeted 33 feet into the water. "Don't touch that boy," Tommy's mother berated the lifeguard on duty, 15-year-old Finn Lewis. "It's sink or swim in our household. This is where Tommy really proves his worth." At press time, Tommy was recovering in the hospital and is reportedly in stable condition. He picked up drawing as a coping mechanism, and his most recent pieces reflect the trauma of his shaky home life.

rupi kaur movie reviews

Interstellar

in space there are stars and some, forget to shine

Blackfish

one fish, two fish black fish
no fish):

The Babadook

baba
baba papa?

Area woman calls senator just to hear comfort of man's voice

AUSTIN — Suffering “intense loneliness” during the Brett Kavanaugh hearings, Austin resident Grace Hoving called the office of senior Texas Senator John Cornyn, not to urge him to vote no on Kavanaugh’s confirmation, but just to “hear the comfort of a man’s voice on the line.” Before calling, Hoving reportedly researched ‘The Hill’s 50 Most Beautiful’ list. “After a while, Martin, one of Cornyn’s congressional interns, and I just developed a friendly rapport with one another. It’s so nice to have someone pretend to write down what you’re saying once in a while.” Hoving, who is recently divorced and without health insurance, is one of many women across the country who have been distressed by the Trump administration’s actions on immigration, healthcare, and gun violence, and need to hear a few sweet nothings from unpaid college interns in Washington, DC. “You’d be surprised at how many of these types of calls we get,” said Martin. At press time, Hoving was reportedly telling a kindly male telemarketer about the latest White House gaffes.

Man watches movie Sunday night so he can say he did something over the weekend

AUSTIN, TX — Upon glancing at the clock and realizing that it was 11pm and he had accomplished nothing all weekend, Joseph Reinhorn quickly put on a movie in hopes of having some content for impending Monday morning conversations at work. “Oh yeah, I watched that old documentary ‘Borat’ over the weekend. It was really interesting. Have you seen it?” stated Reinhorn while practicing his anecdotes for when his stupid coworkers make small talk with him. “James will probably say something like, ‘Hey I just went to Mt. Kilimanjaro and befriended the local sherpas so they gave me free escortment to the top as a gesture of appreciation for taking the time and getting to know them as people and not tools,’ and I can’t just be like, ‘Oh I just masturbated and ate chips.’ Y’know?” At press time, Reinhorn was seen buying a green screen so he could post more exciting photos to his story.

meet the

Young Conservatives of Texas members

Steve Stevenson

- Has read the entire Eragon series
- Pappy was an oil man
- Orders pasta with butter at restaurants

Steve Jongleson

- Says “hola” before ordering at Chipotle
- Really into his German Duolingo course
- Will sue

Dee Dee Robinson

- Has a cubicle at McCombs
- Girlfriend slightly resembles his mother
- Says ‘stay golden, Ponyboy’ for no fucking reason

Trump absolutely baffled Hispanic man's last name is not Fajita

SAN ANTONIO — At a Ted Cruz rally in San Antonio this past Saturday, President Trump became absolutely baffled that one of his Mexican supporter's last names was not "Fajita." In downtown San Antonio, area Hispanic man Michael Cruz introduced himself to the president and left Trump in extreme hysteria. When asked about the incident, Trump candidly responded, "I must admit, my initial reaction was 'No way, Jose.' And then he told me Jose wasn't even his real name." Trump continued, "Well, nobody loves Mexican food more than me, believe me. My father invented fajitas accidentally when he tried to char some of the help's food. I know everything there is to know about the fajita. I actually grew up on a fajita farm right outside New York City, the home of the fajita," he added. At press time, President Trump was flabbergasted to learn that Africa actually had buildings.

Area man shaves his head for no cause

AUSTIN — Area man Johnny Thune shaved his head Monday, citing his passion and drive to raise awareness for absolutely nothing at all. "I'd heard so many sad stories about people struggling with absolutely no respite from their pain, people who really needed a movement to advocate for them on a world stage. But that seemed hard, so I said, 'Fuck it. I'm gonna shave my head,'" said Thune, whose friends praised his utter conviction to help no one at all. "Yeah, I think it's really great as, like, an anarchist statement," said Bill McKlusky, Thune's beer buddy. At press time, Thune's efforts had sparked global solidarity, with many shaving their heads in meaningless protest.

Vape Tasting

with the Travesty

Egg

Refresh your palate with this heavy, hearty dose of protein that perfectly complements a balanced breakfast.

Climate Change

This apocalyptic flavor with notes of gasoline and burning trees. Pairs well with contemplating Earth's impending doom.

Alex Jones

Subtle notes of sulfuric acid that hit the middle of your palette.

OPINION: Breaking up with your girlfriend over a Chili's 2 for $20 is awkward

I broke up with my girlfriend over a Chili's 2 for $20. With my chest scrunched over my own plate of Honey Chipotle Chicken Crispers, I told her that it was over. She was in disbelief and thought I was joking. As I reached to grab some of our shared Texas Cheese Fries, I assured her this was no joking matter. Just then, the waiter walked up and gave us the combined check. "Excuse me sir, but can you split this check and add the Coke Zero to her bill, please," I said. Yes, it was a childish move indeed, but I can't go spending the extra money right now. "So can I have the rest of the Texas Cheese Fries?" I asked as the waiter walked off, trying to lighten the mood. That's when my girlfriend left. I had to pay both bills and carry two to-go plates. Do you know how hard it is to open a car door WHILE simultaneously holding two to-go plates? Talk about awkward. I'm still recovering.

Donate Sperm, Get Paid!

Healthy men, age 18-39

apply at beaspermdonor

.com

Soup not at all what area man expected it to be

NEW YORK — Deviating from his usual “off-menu” deli order of sauerkraut with side of hummus, old, upper-wester Stuart Leibowitz decided to order a bowl of tortilla soup after he had mistaken Uncle Fernandez’s Restaurant for Uncle Finkelstein’s Deli. “I ordered the tortilla soup because something about the word tortilla caught my eye. You know, I expected it to be like chicken noodle soup, which I have eaten before — with the carrots, celery, noodles and soup juice. When the waiter brought me this red chowder looking thing, I thought, ‘Hey, this could be a chowder, because I’ve eaten chowder before too.’ But I was wrong. It wasn’t a chowder at all,” said Leibowitz, who had reportedly been a regular of Finkelstein’s Deli since it finally got its health rating back to a B. At press time, the old man had blamed going into the wrong restaurant on his faulty transitional lenses, which he called “as unreliable as health ratings at delis.”

Long, sinewy vein just cropped up on Dad’s forehead overnight

CARTHAGE, TX — A gangly blue vein took dad’s forehead by storm last evening, one midwestern family reports. “I woke up this morning and BAM! There it was,” claims son Henry Smudgens, whose father will never look the same again. “Is this what is to become of me?” Henry questioned aloud. “I don’t think Dad noticed it yet. That’s the saddest part.” The vein, which definitely isn’t going anywhere, will serve as permanent reminder that even the strongest of dads are no match for Father Time. At press time, the vein did not respond to repeated requests to comment.

UT fraternities respond to accusations of discrimination with promise to bar unattractive people of all races, genders from parties

AUSTIN — A council of university fraternities has elected to kick out “everyone who’s fuckin’ ugly” from their parties, regardless of gender, race, or sexual orientation. Rejects will be promptly directed to the nearest co-op party. “As it turns out, ugly girls of all races do exist, and there are some pretty good-looking dudes out there too. Not in a gay way, though,” read an official statement from the UFC. “The discrimination accusations are obviously total bullshit, but we’re taking these measures nonetheless,” said Ryan Baker, a senior fraternity member. “I mean, one of my high school girlfriends was one-eighth Cherokee, for God’s sake. How the hell can anyone think that we’re racist?” At press time, the council debated more anti-discrimination measures, such as a facial acne evaluation and a minimum cup size requirement. Ryan Baker was last seen downing a bottle of Dos Equis, whispering “It’s Mexican, who’s racist now?” in between sips, to no one in particular.

Ed Ruscha (American, b. 1937), Pool #2, from the portfolio Pools, 1968; printed 1997. © Ed Ruscha

ED RUSCHA

ARCHAEOLOGY AND ROMANCE

ON VIEW NOW

21st and Guadalupe Streets

hrc.utexas.edu

FREE ADMISSION

HARRY RANSOM
CENTER

The University of Texas at Austin

Breaking News: Mandy Patinkin has exact change

NEW YORK — The inimitable Mandy Patinkin entered his local bodega at 7pm Friday night with a case of the “snackies,” the heart of a benevolent fairytale king, and a pocket full of change. 22-year-old cashier Sandra Churlis was having an aggressively ordinary day until Patinkin walked up to her register: register 12. Patinkin reportedly said, “Hello. My name is Mandy Patinkin. You have sold me this package of organic baby carrots. Prepare to get exact change.” And. Then. He. Gave. This. Woman. Exact. Change. Mandy Patinkin was last seen exiting the store in a single, masculine leap like the stag he is, has been, and always will be.

Man moves to L.A. to pursue dream of seeing family feud live

LOS ANGELES — Hunched over the pavement in line with many other hopefuls, Jack Roberto is finally pursuing his singular passion of seeing Family Feud in person. “I feel like I have a better chance than most people, considering I got into a feud with my entire family and left them back in Idaho to get here,” Roberto said. He worked on his laugh and his “ooh’s” to show off what he could contribute as an audience member if selected. “Once I see Steve Harvey’s surprised, sweaty face from over a 100 feet away I’ll be a happy man.”

Report: Hallmark invents death to sell ‘Sorry For Your Loss’ cards

“Y’know, we feel like we’re doing our job as entrepreneurs to...make a profit. It’s just business. It’s not personal,” claimed Hallmark CEO, Hall Markson, at a press conference as he showed how his new product worked on his grandmother. Death has proven to be a very controversial innovation, with backlash from 100% of people. One Cincinnati 11-year-old, expressing the sentiment of the public, cried, “I still want my Nana back!” Despite the outrage, Hallmark’s sales of ‘Sorry For Your Loss’ cards exponentially increased in the last fiscal quarter. “Everybody Dies!” chanted the board of trustees, as they drenched themselves in champagne and money at the end of the press conference. At press time, Hallmark stock had soared with the introduction of yet another innovation: “birth”.

Travesty's HOT OR NOT!

 Lewis	 Clark	 Zoboomafo	 Frederick Douglass	 Emily Dickinson	 Dick Van Dyke
 HOT	 NOT		 HOT	 HOT	 HOT
Hearts	Hearts	Hearts	Hearts	Hearts	Hearts